Provide program description: KCFSI is designed to increase reading and literacy skill amount youth ages 4-17 while teaching them self-confidence, conflict resolution and will use programs under its umbrella that will aid in violence prevention by increasing reading and literacy and dismantling the cradle to prison pipeline. The majority of fourth graders are not reading a grade level which is a factor commonly used for as an indicator for a violent predicted future. Through our literacy programs, our goal is to reduce violence, detention and incarceration by increasing preventive supports for children and families. KCFSI serves over 350 children and their families annually from the Kansas City metro area in summer and school-year programs. Data collected from KCFSI enrollment forms indicate that almost 80 percent reside in Jackson County, Missouri, approximately one in three lives in poverty, and 80 percent attend low performing or failing schools that have high percentages of economically disadvantaged children and youth. Students' needs are highlighted by the fact that only 19 percent of students in the local Kansas City Public Schools can read at a proficient level by the time they finish third grade; less than one in five achieve reading proficiency by fourth grade (Missouri Department of Elementary and Secondary Education, www.dese.mo.gov). During our summer 8-week Summer School Academy (SSA), the youth receive additional supports to increase reading and literacy skills while developing interpersonal skills, developing self-esteem, and conflict resolution in an effort to reduce violence in targeted crime areas. This program allows us to track the progress of the scholar who attended the SSA and provide additional support to ensure schools are reading and computing at grade level. This program is open to any child who needs additional mentoring in reading and literacy skills. This program allows us to track progress throughout the school year and provide a continuum of care for our summer schools. The servant leader intern program is a key component of the program. It support the employment for the 25 and under population. Through our servant leader intern program, our scholars receive multigenerational mentoring. This level of mentoring is strives to improve the lives of children's while enriching their own lives. Our program highlights cultural awareness through its integrated reading curriculum that introduces students to a rich collection of culturally diverse literature. Literacy is a lifeline to preventing violence.

Describe the benefits of this program to Jackson County Missouri: During our summer 8-week Summer School Academy (SSA), the youth receive additional supports to increase reading and literacy skills while developing interpersonal skills, developing self-esteem, and conflict resolution in an effort to reduce violence in targeted crime areas. This program allows us to track the progress of the scholar who attended the SSA and provide additional support to ensure schools are reading and computing at grade level. This program is open to any child who needs additional mentoring in reading and literacy skills. The purpose of the KCFSI is to increase students' academic success throughout the school year, focusing primarily on reading and literacy skills, but also employing the Freedom School model of building self-esteem and developing social and interpersonal skills, which are imperative in preventing violence. The academies supports students as they strive to meet and exceed the Common Core State Standards. For three hours on Saturday mornings at Mt. Pleasant Missionary Baptist Church and for two hours each, two days a week afterschool at two elementary schools , certified teachers used the Renaissance Learning's computer-based STAR Early Literacy, Star Reader and Accelerated Reader programs to work with students on reading mechanics such as, but not limited to: phonics, phonemic awareness, vocabulary, fluency, and comprehension. The student to teacher ratio (15:1) is low and instruction and assessment is personalized and intentional to enhance the student's learning and retention. Parents are required to attend 4 parent meetings in addition to the parent orientation program. Parent meeting are designed as parent seminars to provide informative information on child developed and the skills needed to aid in the fight for literacy, healthy living and violence prevention.
