

Estella Morales

Women's History Month recognizes the leadership, accomplishments, and impact of women who strengthen their communities.

Born in Iola, Kansas, to a father who migrated from Mexico and a mother who was born in Kansas.

Estella has been involved with the Hispanic Chamber of Commerce of Greater Kansas City since the late 1980s, serving as a City Hall liaison and later being elected to the board.

She has a strong dedication to uplifting Kansas City's Hispanic community—from launching programs like KC BizFest and Latinos of Tomorrow, to connecting chambers and championing nonprofits like Impact 100 partner, Mattie Rhodes Center.

She is very active in her faith and community, serving as a proud member of the Catholic community at her church, The Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception in Kansas City, St. Joseph Catholic Diocese.

She has been a strong advocate for Hispanic community leaders and for empowering all women leaders.
