Megan L. Marshall said September 11, 2001 is a day etched into many of our hearts, it's not just as a day of tragedy, but a moment that has forever shaped our lives. For veterans and first responders September 11th is personal, it was a reminder of why we put on the uniform, why we swore an oath to defend our country, and why we continue to stand ready. So let us carry the memory of that day, not as a burden, but as a testament to the resilience, courage, and unity shown to one another that day because that defines America and that's who Americans are. Chairman Marshall asked for a moment of silence.
