Client Services Coordination

Client Services Coordination promotes independent living among seniors--improving their overall health, allowing them to stay in their homes longer and decreasing the need for high-cost residential healthcare services. A Don Bosco Service Coordinator meets with homebound participants twice each year to conduct an in-home assessment of their need for continued meal delivery, the home environment and other basic needs. Throughout the year, the Coordinator helps them resolve any issues and crises that arise via phone communication. She also gives information about other services provided by the Don Bosco Family Support Center, including emergency assistance such as food, clothing, rent and utilities and mental health services, as well as referrals to other agencies. The Center works with entitites such as Kansas City Power & Light, AARP Volunteer Tax Assistance Service and Truman Behavioral Health to provide assistance filing application

To provide direct service or referrals to other agencies.

Detail specific methods you will use to achieve these objectives.

- 1. The client service coordinator conducts a bi-annual, in-home assessment of the client's health and living conditions. Based on the assessment, the coordinator helps resolve any issues and provides information and direct service assistance through the Center, Don Bosco's Family Support Center or contacts appropriate community agencies to set up services or benefits needed.
- 2. & 3. Regular phone contact with clients ensures that services are provided and referrals are made on an ongoing basis. The client's needs are met during times of crisis and when needs arise. A Latino Outreach Coordinator is available to communicate in Spanish for the growing Latino population in the Northeast. The social worker will go to the senior's home, if necessary, in addition to the regularly scheduled home visit, to address serious issues. As may be necessary, staff notify the Division of Aging/hotline for an emergency, intense follow-up.

Evaluation

How can the success of each program be evaluated?

Indicate performance measures or statistics you will use to demonstrate the success of each program.

Quantitative measurements such as units of health promotion and activities, average daily attendance at the Center, and number of participants who participate in organized exercise, educational and recreational activities are captured via "signature sheets". The MARC staff conducts on-site audits for service delivery systems annually, and requires monthly and quarterly reports verifying services provided. Written records are also provided to clients and center staff from health screenings provided by nursing students. Client surveys administered annually measure the impact of the program on their personal independence and quality assurance. Historically, these surveys have consistently indicidated high rates of satisfaction. Also, staff and instructor feedback provide important information regarding client satisfaction.

On-Site and Home-Delivered Meal Program

The Don Bosco Senior Center recognizes that good nutrition is key to sustaining good health and necessary for maintaining independent living among seniors. For seniors and individuals with disabilities, who have the ability to get out of their home (supported by transporation services), congregate meals provide an opportunity to share their noon meal with others. A hot meal, prepared in the kitchen at the Don Bosco Senior Center, is served Monday through Friday and is within strict nutritional guidelines set by the Mid-America Regional Council. Two registered dieticians review the menu to make certain that standards are met. In addition to ensuring nutritional intake, the congregate meals give seniors and individuals with disabilities the opportunity to socialize and join in activities. Participation in congregate meals also increases the likelihood that they will become involved in health promotional programs offered by the Center. Between

The Service Coordinator is evaluated by MARC through detailed monthly reports on the status of homebound individuals. Annual participant surveys measure indicators of success such as an increase (or maintenance) in ability to live independently due to services provided and improved knowledge about and access to support services and community resources. Clients provide feedback about the quality of food via a written survey collected in the Center and in the home.
