Provide program description: These funds will support the home-delivered meal service. Recent modernization of this service has increased MARC's capacity to enroll more clients, and to provide those clients with more choice over the types of meals that they receive and when they receive them. The service includes client intake and assessment, meal preparation, and meal delivery to the client. In some cases, meals are delivered first to congregate meal sites, and then volunteer drivers take them to the client's home. Meals are provided to eligible residents of the county who are either 60 years old or older, or adults with disabilities who are between 18-59 years old. Rapid aging of Jackson County has increased demand for home-delivered meals, and innovation is required to continue excellent service to a broader number of clients, even without increasing state or federal funding.

Describe the benefits of this program to Jackson County Missouri: The mission of the Area Agency on Aging housed at MARC is to help high-risk older people remain in their homes for as long as possible. Nutritional support has been shown to reduce institutionalization, hospital readmission, and other negative outcomes that lead to infrastructure strain and depletion of county resources. Home-delivered meals clients are assessed for access to other services that help to support aging in place and remaining in Jackson County.

Describe target population to be served: The target population is adults 60+, or adults aged 18 to 59 with disabilities. Services are especially targeted to individuals who are low-income minority, rural, or of limited-English proficiency as they are known to be at the highest risk for poor health outcomes. Professional assessment methods allow MARC to identify individuals who are of the highest risk across domains of health and well-being, and service to these individuals is prioritized.

What are the qualifications for participants: Under the Older Americans Act, service must be prioritized to those in the greatest social and economic need. The aforementioned age and special target populations apply to the home-delivered meals program, and serve to guide service prioritization.
